

STATE OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, project management has made a positive impact on the State of Texas;

WHEREAS, such management encompasses a range of projects, from the construction of new homes, to the building of new schools and the undertaking of oil and gas exploration initiatives;

WHEREAS, project managers worldwide, by sharing their expertise, foster wide-ranging benefits;

WHEREAS, such benefits are substantial, among them, providing critical expertise in the building of new communities, the restoration of environments negatively impacted by natural disasters, and on projects that strengthen our economy; and

WHEREAS, these dedicated professionals and their teams exemplify the importance of leadership, cooperation, creativity, innovation and perseverance.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Rick Perry, Governor of the great State of Texas, encourage all Texans to recognize the invaluable contributions of project managers. In recognition of the many accomplishments of project managers, I do hereby proclaim, November 2, 2006, as:

Project Management Day

Sincerely,

Rick Perry
